

I believe that Canadians benefit when governments solicit, collect and use the evidence and expertise needed to make smart policy decisions that safeguard our health, safety and prosperity. At its best, science is open and international, and I support actions, at home and abroad, that invest in public-interest science; ensure open, honest and timely communication of scientific information; and make public the evidence considered in government decisions.

NAME/ORGANIZATION